Fine Arts Center Campaign Nears Completion

The arts have always been fine at Mary Baldwin, but they are about to become even finer. In October 1981 the College began a $1.2 million campaign for the renovation of former SMA Memorial Hall into a comprehensive Fine Arts Center. Now the financial aspect of the campaign is near completion, construction is one-third complete, and plans are proceeding for August 1983 occupancy.

The 20,000-square-foot facility will house the art, music, and theatre programs, one floor being devoted to each. The first opportunity for the fine arts faculty to show off their new facility came on October 9, Founders' Day. Following the traditional ceremony and the address, a hard-hat tour was conducted. Donning their shiny hard hats, 150 visitors were escorted through the building-under-construction by costumed student guides.

Art professors Desportes and Olsson described the building's top floor to the "tourists"; the main floor, to be occupied by the music department, was presented by Mr. Robert Allen, new music professor, and choir member Dana Carol Wolfe, a freshman from Gillett, Arkansas; then the drama floor was shown off by professors Virginia Francisco '64 and Theresa Southerington '72. The basement will house printmaking and photography.

Charlotte Lunsford '51, College trustee who has chaired the campaign, noted that there have been several highlights of the $1.2 million fund-raising effort. One was receipt of a $150,000 challenge grant from the Kresge Foundation. Another is the intention of arts alumnae to honor past arts faculty. Specifically, campaigns have been announced to name the studio theatre for Fletcher Collins and to name rooms on the music level for Gordon Page, Ruth McNeil and Carl Broman. Mrs. Lunsford also stated that a $45,000 matching grant from the Morgan Foundation has been successfully met.

Memorial Hall is adjacent to Kable Hall and Prospect Street; it lies just across the drive from the Student Activities Center. Architect John Owen of the Lynchburg firm Clark, Nexsen, Owen, Barbieri and Gibson, working with administrators and faculty, envisioned a design that would be not only functional and cost effective but unique and appealing as well. One floor above the printmaking workroom and photography lab is the theatre level. A large "black box" studio theatre is found here. In addition, there is space for costumes, stage properties, scenery design, construction and storage and the traditional "green room." The theatre, which will accommodate an audience of more than 100, has its own lobby, and there are entrances from both sides for both audience and actors.

One floor up is the music level. There is a large rehearsal area in the north end of the building for instrumental groups and choirs, four music practice rooms, a specially designed music listening area and no less than five classrooms. Since the classrooms will be shared with the art and theatre departments, as scheduling and demand requires, acoustical materials will be used in many of the partitions to ensure that maximum use can be made of all the various spaces.

The uppermost floor of the Fine Arts Center may be its most innovative one. Since it was once a gymnasium, this floor is almost two stories high. Large windows provide an abundance of natural sunlight. This vast open space whose roof is supported by columns has been kept intact. The result is a large open studio area. Faculty offices and supply storage are at the north end while at the south are rooms for textile and fiber work.

The new facility comes at a propitious time. In this year's freshman class, there were more students expressing interest in art than in any other field except business. Art and theatre combined fall short only by three compared to those students interested in business, mathematics, and computer combined. Also, in large part due to our new facilities, music is getting the support it deserves under new faculty members, Robert Allen and Cheryl West.

Donations to the Fine Arts Center campaign as a whole or to the individual funds honoring former faculty are welcome. Please contact Dr. Frank Pancake at the College.

The Fine Arts Center, under renovation, was toured Saturday, October 9, by 150 people. This group of faculty, students, trustees, and friends was led by College President Virginia Lester (second from right).

Enrollment: Reaching New Heights

For the first time in its 141-year history, Mary Baldwin College has enrolled more than 1,000 students.

This enrollment is the greatest ever. Only six years ago, less than 600 students were served. Further, the growth occurred during a time when many colleges were retrenching.

Dr. Lester, who joined the College in 1976 when it had the lowest enrollment in recent history, identifies three reasons for the turnaround. First is the traditional degree program. There, enrollment has increased from 582 to 660, a 13% increase. Second, is the Adult Degree Program, one that Dr. Lester initiated at the College. In its short history it has grown to a current enrollment of 157 — 140 men and women have already graduated from this innovative program.

Third, over 300 people have enrolled this year in a combination of seminar, workshop, and continuing education courses. This first semester enrollment compares with a full-year count of 60 students just five years ago.

Total headcount actually exceeds 1,100. Headcount enrollment is a measure of the number of students — full-time or part-time, college-age or adult, degree or non-degree — who are taking advantage of college courses.

It should be noted that the emphasis at Mary Baldwin is not on numbers, however. The record-setting enrollment occurred at the same time the Class of 1986 was being more carefully selected than any class in the last five years. Not since 1977 had so many applicants been denied admission. Moreover, academic standards for returning students were strictly enforced and a larger number than in recent years were denied readmission. The Class of 1986 is also more academically competitive: there was a 17% increase in the number of students who ranked in the top two quintiles of their high school graduating classes. Finally, using SAT scores as the comparison, the College's entering Bailey Scholars are easily the best it has had in the last three or four years.

Quantity and quality: two key words at Mary Baldwin College.

Fall Weekends Full of Activity at Mary Baldwin

by Lee Johnston Foster '75

Fortunately, all of Dr. Lester's faculty meetings, foundation visits, special dinners, staff meetings, Texas-Richmond-New York-Kentucky trips, speech writing, etc., have recently been on Monday through Friday. It is fortunate because each of the six fall weekends on campus is packed full. Here, on the next 3 pages, are the six big happenings here at Mary Baldwin. This is my first fall on campus, and it has been fascinating to watch Dr. Lester in action.

September 23-25 Alumnae Leadership Conference

The string of big weekends kicks off with alumnae returning to campus for a Friday through Sunday work session. I was closest to the action as our new Alumnae Activities Director, and here is a reprint of the memorandum to Dr. Lester from me.

Memorandum

TO: President Lester
FROM: Lee Foster
DATE: September 28, 1982
SUBJECT: Alumnae Leadership Conference

A quick report on the conference and Alumnae Board meeting last weekend. First of all, I'd like to thank you for the reception at your house on Friday night and especially for the State of the College address. Your "Fireside Chat" style went over really well; the description of all the things happening at MBC was both informative and inspirational. It was a good way to cap the day.

Friday afternoon's activities were aimed largely at orientation of new members and planning of the weekend's business. Susan Homar presided. She is, of course, as new as I am at running an alumnae organization, but she handled it well. She'll be a good team leader. That is much of what the conference is about — building a team of alumnae activists.

The Saturday morning session — both the reports by the top administrators and the campus tour — set the tone for the afternoon committee sessions. The following groups met and prepared reports for the final Alumnae Board meeting on Sunday: Admissions Committee, Annual Giving Committee, Continuing Education Committee, Nominations Committee, Chapter Activities Committee, Reunion Class Chairpersons, chapter representatives, admissions area coordinators, and the Cookbook Committee.

Charlotte Lunsford's attendance at the Conference was invaluable. First, she was instrumental in the Board's adoption of a resolution endorsing 100% participation by all Board members in the Fine Arts Center campaign. Second, the leadership she will give us in revitalizing or activating alumnae chapters is already evident. She is certainly deserving of the Emily Smith medallion.

Susan Homar and I could not have made the conference work without the assistance of Leigh Yates and Susan Hoffman. If you see them before I do, please pass on my thanks.

Following chapel on Sunday morning, the final Board meeting was held, as you know. Key actions:

- 1. Four new admissions area coordinators chosen;*
- 2. Phonathon schedule tentatively set;*
- 3. Continuing education courses for reunion weekend set;*
- 4. Money authorized to send representative/s to cookbook marketing seminar;*
- 5. Reunion weekend set for May 20-22;*
- 6. Next year's Leadership Conference set for September 23-25;*
- 7. Resolutions for Board members to support Annual Giving and Fine Arts Center campaigns 100%; and*
- 8. Interest in an "alumnae college" to be explored.*

A productive Leadership Conference. We will push for larger attendance next year.

October 1-2 Advisory Board of Visitors

It actually starts Friday, September 30, with new members meeting at Dr. Lester's house for dinner. The business sessions begin Friday morning. Mary Lou Goderre '83, co-editor of Campus Comments, printed this news story in the paper.

ABV Visits Campus From Campus Comments Friday, October 8, 1982

by Mary Lou Goderre

The fall meeting of the Advisory Board of Visitors and Parents Council was held on October 1 and 2 here at MBC. The responsibility of the ABV, established ten years ago by the Board of Trustees, is to serve as a liaison between the College and the various communities in which the members live.

The ABV helps in the recruitment of students, the publishing of the quality of MBC and in seeking financial support from foundations, corporations and friends through individual contacts. This weekend the committee, consisting of 45 regular members out of a complement of 50, oriented 12 of the 21 new members into their two-year terms.

There are four committees that ABV is involved in. They are: Admissions with Herbert England of Birmingham, Alabama, as chairperson; Career Planning with Julia Williams of Richmond, Virginia, as chairperson; Development with Ray Wooldridge of Dallas, Texas, as chairperson; and Information and Publications with Pauline Mitchell of Richmond, Virginia, as chairperson.

The main item on the agenda was discussion of the completion of the Fine Arts Center. The ABV has pledged $25,000 to the center. A specific classroom in the center will be identified as a contribution from the ABV. To date, $19,300 of the pledge has been received. Frank Pancake at the general meeting spoke of the $5,700 that still needs to be raised. New members of the ABV voted to participate in the pledge.

For the first time, a Career Seminar was held in which MBC students discussed career opportunities with members of the ABV and Parents Council. Career Services coordinated the seminar and hopes to hold more in the future.

The Spring ABV meeting will take place the weekend of March 18 and 19.

The board spent two days in meetings. Thursday evening, new members met at President Lester's home for dinner. All of Friday morning was spent in an orientation meeting and then a general meeting at 1:00 p.m. that day. The meeting dismissed at noon on Saturday.

October 8-10 Founders' Day Parents' Weekend

We pack enough into these few days to exhaust even Dr. Lester! Founders' Day is Saturday. This year it is the climax of a 3-day conference we are holding on campus — Women and Diplomacy. Dr. Ken Keller and Dorothy Mulberry put the conference together. It is in honor of "A Century of International Service" by Mary Baldwin faculty and students (Ed. Note: See Dr. Keller's article on page 28), and we had missionary alumnae plus speakers from Red Cross, Organization of American States, U.S. Information Agency, and International Leadership Development Office of the Presbyterian Church. The whole conference was funded by a portion of our U.S. Department of Education grant.

Parents arrive on Friday evening as does the opening of our first play production of the year, a British comedy entitled Move Over, Mrs. Markham.

Dr. Lester hosts the reception for parents, seniors, and freshmen in Spencer lounge at 9:00 Saturday morning, then dashes up to the Student Activities Center to put on her cap and gown so she can preside over the Founders' Day convocation. She invests the senior class and then introduces our speaker Mildred Marcy. Mrs. Marcy is really a pro, and we are lucky to get her. She has been in the State Department for 20 years and with the League of Women Voters before that. She knows international communications like the back of her hand and is currently Senior Advisor for Educational and Cultural Affairs at the U.S.

Information Agency. A couple interesting notes: her mother was the first woman admitted to the bar in Oregon, and she attended a woman's college. Mrs. Marcy gives a terrific speech on women and foreign service.

Mildred Marcy

The things a President gets talked into! Dr. Lester's assistant has engineered the hard-hat tour of the Fine Arts Center renovation which is to follow the ceremony. He wants her to announce the tour by taking off her fancy academic cap and putting on a blue construction hard hat. She does so and then leads the recessional looking, she said later, as though she had a Ph.D. in steel working — academic regalia from the neck down and hard hat perched on top.

The tour goes well. What an addition to our campus the Fine Arts Center will be! Mildred Marcy and Dr. Lester walk through together in a group of students, parents, and faculty. Peggy Hitchman, one of our trustees, is also with them.

Lunch with parents, academic activities in the afternoon, Irene Hecht in charge, and then the play at 8:00. A long day.

October 15-17 Fall Fest

This is the big social weekend on campus. Fortunately, it is mostly student oriented, so Dr. Lester and I have a bit of a breather. There is a film Friday evening; Dr. Lester misses it because there is a hearing at City Hall which could have some impact on land use in the Gospel Hill district of Staunton. She had asked Ken, her assistant, to check up on the land issue and, when she got back in town Friday afternoon, he said, "Guess what. There's a hearing tonight at 7:30." She dropped everything and went.

A big dance Saturday night and one Sunday afternoon. Parking is unreal both days because the Buddy Dey Tennis Tournament is also being held. Lois Blackburn directs it. Our faculty are involved in countless local, regional, and national activities.

October 23 Roanoke

Dr. Lester has been invited to Roanoke College today. They have completed and are dedicating a multi-million dollar athletic facility. It is no secret that President Lester believes this is our next big building project on our campus.

Sports has boomed at MBC. With our new membership in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and Old Dominion Athletic Conference (ODAC), we are on our way to a full-fledged athletic program. We now compete intercollegiately in swimming, tennis, basketball, volleyball, riding, and fencing. Also, field hockey and cross country are now intercollegiate club level sports.

Roanoke's facility is beautiful and we all believe ours will be equally so. Our complex will include everything from racketball courts to indoor pool. We can hardly wait.

October 28-31 Fall Board of Trustees Meeting

By Dr. Virginia Lester

I asked Dr. Lester, herself, to describe the fall board meeting. Here are her thoughts.

The two full Board meetings per year are the most important weekends for me. This meeting is even more important than usual, since it is the first one for Dean Hecht in her new position. Nearly all of the work gets done in committees — student life, academic affairs, finance, development, nominations. Before Friday's meetings even get started, there is a Nominating Committee meeting and orientation for new Board members on Thursday evening. This year Liddy Doenges '63 and Dr. Sam Graham are going through the orientation.

The people who chair the five key committees are: Anne Dickson '61, Development; Peggy Hitchman, Student Life; Caroline Schoellkopf '43, Nominations; Dick Ernst, Academic Affairs; and Jim Farinholt, Finance. Also, Charlotte Lunsford has been excellent as chair of the Fine Arts Center campaign.

However, when you think about the Board, you must start and finish with Rosemarie Sena. If there is any place in the country that has been more hectic than our campus the past month, it has been Wall Street. So for Rosemarie, a Senior Vice-President at Shearson/American Express, to be able to do her own job and be chairwoman of our Board is just remarkable.

The Board meeting went well. Key discussion topics were completion of the Fine Arts Center campaign, program development, financial affairs, and a system of faculty evaluation. Friday afternoon the whole Board met as part of the Student Life Committee. We can be thankful that our Board members really are interested in what is happening to students. And vice versa: students serve on most of the committees. So do faculty.

The logistics went smoothly as always. Much of the credit goes to the key administrators, but the work behind the scenes is crucial: for example, Betty Carr, my secretary Carolyn Meeks, the whole physical plant staff.

I entertained people at my house all weekend. Don Brennan, who was on campus as early as Wednesday to be one of our "Executives in the Classroom," began to feel like Staunton was home.

October 31. The end of daylight savings time. I set my clocks back one hour, and let out a sigh of relief that I don't have to set them back one month. I don't believe I could handle another October.

Irene Hecht Joins College As Dean

visits to campus. They were goal-oriented, energetic, interested in exercising leadership.

"Students were a very important part of my decision," commented the Dean. "They take on very responsible and adult roles at Mary Baldwin which strengthens the community."

Dean Hecht is first an academician and second an administrator. She holds a Phi Beta Kappa key from her alma mater Radcliffe College. Her master's and doctorate degrees, from the Universities of Rochester and Washington respectively, are in history.

Both the faculty and administration at Lewis and Clark looked to her for leadership on curricular change and functional reform. She was institutional representative to the American Association of University Women and has worked on accreditation site visitation teams.

Dr. Hecht is a member of the American Historical Association, the Organization of American Historians, and a reader for National Endowment for the Humanities, to name but a few activities.

The pace she sets is clear evidence that all her energies will be applied to the academic life of the campus. "My attitude is that there is no time to waste; each day counts."

DHecht is new Dean of the College. Our new chief academic officer comes from Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Oregon, where she served as associate dean of faculty and associate professor of history.

Though Dr. Hecht, her husband Ron Saroff, and their family were well satisfied with their situation in Portland, a colleague nominated her for the MBC deanship. While reluctant at first to consider a move, she nevertheless expressed interest in the position. A month later and after two visits to the College, the Search Committee decided it wanted her as the new Dean.

Happily, she believed by that time it was a challenge she could not resist.

Three factors were central. One was the opportunity to work with College President Virginia Lester. The second was an extremely able and vital faculty which had already accomplished a great deal but which desired further direction and innovation. Perhaps the key factor was the students she met on her

Lee Foster Becomes Director of Alumnae Activities

Though Lee Johnston Foster '75 has been director of alumnae activities for three months now and has made it successfully through Alumnae Leadership Conference, ABV and Board of Trustee meetings, and her first issue of Mary Baldwin magazine, she is still a new face to many alumnae.

Lee is one of few people who can claim a bachelor's degree from two excellent institutions. After completing her work at Mary Baldwin in mathematics in 1975, the University of Virginia beckoned. So, as preface to what she expected to be a career in industry, Lee took a bachelor's in engineering, finishing in 1977.

A native Virginian, she stayed close to home working for Burlington Industries in Virginia and North Carolina. In 1980 she became associate industrial engineer at Westinghouse Electric Corporation in South Boston, Virginia.

During the summer of 1982, as Lee began to consider a return to academia and the College searched for an Alumnae Director, everything fell into place. Lee, her husband Larry, and their son Johnston reside in Buena Vista where Larry is city manager.

New Alumnae Association President Named

Susan Baughman Homar '74, the new President of the national Alumnae Association of Mary Baldwin College, began her two-year term of office July 1. Before being elected President this past May, Susan served as Vice-President for Admissions of the Alumnae Board and as a member of the Chapter Activities Committee. Susan has been a member of the Alumnae Board since 1980.

Prior to her election to the Alumnae Board, Susan served as an Admissions Coordinator for the Alumnae Admissions Program and as the chairman for the fifth reunion of the Class of 1974.

After receiving a Bachelor of Arts in history from Mary Baldwin, Susan took graduate courses in landscape architecture at North Carolina State University and in 1980 received her master's degree from the University of Virginia in urban planning.

Susan is currently employed as a national account representative with Group Hospitalization, Inc., in Washington, D.C. She is married to Don P. Homar, and they have one daughter Rachel who was born this past May. Susan and Don live in Springfield, Va.

Dear Alumnae:

As your new president of the Mary Baldwin Alumnae Association, I am looking forward to a productive year in which support of all alumnae projects will grow, thus increasing our overall contribution to the College. As alumnae, our efforts and support of Mary Baldwin College will ensure that it remains a very special institution providing a quality education for women.

My term as president will provide me the opportunity to see and work with many of you for the next two years. It is a special privilege to represent the alumnae in this capacity, but also it is an important challenge. Your support is vital to our success. I urge each of you to make a commitment to Mary Baldwin and its prosperous future by becoming more involved in alumnae support of the College this year.

The Alumnae Association Board of Directors met in September to review our goals and objectives for the year. Our two primary responsibilities are to represent the interests of the greater membership of the Alumnae Association to the College and to encourage support of the College by the alumnae. The first of these is accomplished by the diverse class representation on your Alumnae Board.

Additionally, we welcome your direct input with respect to issues involving the College and suggestions for Board members. Secondly, support of the College by our alumnae can come in many forms. A few examples are the development of a local chapter or support of an established chapter, participation in the phonathon, keeping a watchful eye open for a potential student and then completing an Alumnae Admissions Nomination Form, and regular contributions to the Annual Fund.

Participation from all alumnae is needed. The Alumnae Association is your organization, and its successes and impact on the College depend on us all.

Sincerely,

Susan E. P. Homar

Charlotte Jackson Lunsford '51 Receives Emily Smith Award

Charlotte Jackson Lunsford '51, was awarded the Emily Smith Medallion on May 15 during Reunion Weekend. Charlotte is currently a member of the Board of Trustees and Chairwoman of the Fine Arts Center Campaign. She received a Bachelor of Arts in psychology from Mary Baldwin and has taken courses in economics at the University of North Carolina. She is also a past president of the Board of Directors of the Alumnae Association.

A resident of Asheville, North Carolina, Charlotte has received such honors as the 1981-82 Woman of the Year and the Big "A" Award from the Asheville Area Chamber of Commerce. She has been active in volunteer work with the Red Cross, United Way, Asheville Symphony Society and Trinity Episcopal Church. She also serves on the Board of Visitors of Western Carolina University and the Board of Directors of Wachovia Bank.

The Emily Smith Medallion is awarded annually to an alumna who shows "outstanding service to church, college, community, and Commonwealth."

College Plans Annual Giving Campaign, Announces Phonathon Schedule

Mary Baldwin College is still pushing harder to increase the number of alumnae who contribute to the annual fund campaign.

Efforts paid off last year. The 1981-82 drive was a success, as 35 percent, or 2,493 alumnae, contributed almost $200,000 to the annual fund. That total was an increase of nearly $50,000 over the 1980-81 campaign. It also topped last year's goal of $180,000.

The success of last year was a great accomplishment. The College appreciates the generosity of its alumnae. Yet, you can still be inspired to even greater heights. Evidence is in the fact that neighboring colleges receive greater response from their graduates.

Reports from 1980-81 campaigns show 44 percent of alumnae gave to Randolph Macon Women's College; 42 percent to Hollins; and 52 percent to Sweet Briar.

Those higher percentages are not out of reach for Mary Baldwin, whose alumnae are just as loyal and supportive. Therefore, the College has set an alumnae participation goal of 42 percent for this year's campaign.

The total annual fund goal, including gifts from all supporters, is $470,000.

The contribution goal for alumnae is $250,000, of which $80,000 should come from the sixth annual phonathon campaign.

The phonathon, which lasts approximately 25 days, begins in January in Dallas and follows in eight other cities, including Charlottesville, New York City, Baltimore, and Alexandria. It continues until March 17.

The College initiated the phonathon in the 1977-78 annual giving campaign and plans to make this year's phonathon the best yet.

Here is a schedule of locations and dates.

Who's Making News

Mary Baldwin alums are making news from coast to coast. You are our only source of information. Please tell us when you or other alumnae are doing something newsworthy. Here is a sampler.

LEE McALLISTER '68 is a professional actress and film director producer. Television commercials and short feature films are her specialties. Her most recent coup? Lee is "the voice" directing passengers through Atlanta's vast Hartsfield International Airport. "I have to admit that my husband (Winn Turner) and I did go out to the airport so I could hear myself." She regards her airport job as a refreshing change in her hectic schedule. "That may be the best job I've ever had," she jokes. "Somebody paid me all day just to tell people where to go."

JENNET ROBINSON '73 is Chief of Staff for Lieutenant Governor Nancy Stephenson, the first woman ever elected to statewide office in South Carolina. She was Young Business Career Woman of the Year and State Political Action Committee Chairwoman for Business and Professional Womens Clubs, Inc. How did her liberal arts education prepare her? It gave her a "broad frame of reference" — one she has obviously used in news reporting and anchoring TV broadcasts and serving the Peace Corps in Afghanistan and canoeing and backpacking and...

MARY C. JARRATT '64 took three giant steps that resulted in President Reagan naming her Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Food and Consumer Services. Step one was serving on the staff of U.S. Representative Richard Poff. Step two was becoming the first woman to be named to professional status in the 130-year history of the House Agriculture Committee. Finally, on to the Cabinet-level Department of Agriculture.

JUDITH GODWIN '52 has achieved yet another success in her art career. On October 12 she opened her one-woman show at New York's Ingber Gallery. This is just the latest in a series of one-woman shows in New York and Virginia and group shows in Colorado, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Michigan.

BEVERLY ESTES BATES '64 is the new President of Richmond's Junior League. Their house journal, the Leaguer, recently featured her interest in neighborhood restoration and revitalization. She is working toward her master's degree in learning disabilities, mothers two daughters and is married to attorney John Bates of the McGuire, Woods and Battle law firms. Says the Leaguer, "This year she will oversee projects toward which the League has contributed $57,000, many of which she hopes eventually will be taken over by the community."

Other accomplishments you may have heard about (alphabetically): KAREN AUSTIN '72 has the female lead in ABC's brand new adventure series "The Quest" and was featured on "Entertainment Tonight" and "Good Morning America"; MARCIA McDONALD HELMS '72 is in the September 6, 1982, Time magazine advertisement featuring her and the other top corporate officers at 1st American Bank of Virginia where she is Vice-President for Corporate Banking; MONICA (Niki) HOOSE '74 sees her name up in lights daily since she is a producer of the "McNeil-Lehrer Report."

Other faces you might have seen: CAROLINE HUNT SCHOELLKOPF '43 in the October 5, 1981, issue of Fortune; MISSEY TILLER '81 on the cover of Virginia's Commonwealth magazine; MARY SUE SHIELDS KOONTZ '53 and her husband gracing the cover of Ultra; and MARGARET KING STANLEY '52 featured as Executive Director of San Antonio's Performing Arts Association on the cover of San Antonio's Today, September 19, 1982.

Virginia Lester is the only college president in Virginia chosen for the study, which will focus on effective styles of management and the factors that allow effective leadership to take place.

Sharon Ann Elliott, a higher education researcher, conducted a two-week field study for Dr. Riesman at the College in October. Her visit included interviews with students, faculty, administrators, and trustees.

In gathering her information, she attended classes, meetings and sports events, and visited students in the dining hall and library.

Colleges for the study were narrowed to six after two-day visits last spring by Dr. Riesman and his colleagues to 20 colleges across the country.

"We chose Mary Baldwin because we thought it deserved close examination of positive management by Dr. Lester," Ms. Elliott said. "Our choice of Mary Baldwin shows that effective leadership is functioning here."

An Overview of a Century of International Careers

by Kenneth W. Keller, Associate Professor of History

When a 45-year-old woman pulled up stakes in her native state and launched a 40-year career in the equatorial jungles, the history of international work for Mary Baldwin women began.

On Founders' Day in October, Mary Baldwin students and faculty reflected on 100 years of missionary work and overseas service by the College.

It all began in 1882, with Charlotte Kemper, and led to careers throughout the world related to international religious, humanitarian, educational, commercial, and diplomatic service.

An instructor at Augusta Female Seminary, now Mary Baldwin College, Miss Kemper shattered conventions with her decision to take up missionary work in Brazil. She set sail for Rio de Janeiro on a cold January 7, 1882, and after a stormy three-week journey, she reached her destination.

Two weeks later she traveled 100 miles inland to the city of Campinas and established a school for girls.

Although her primary goal was to promote Presbyterian missions in Brazil, she performed acts of charity, bringing food, clothing, and literacy to young women.

When her school was moved to Lavras, a school for boys was opened nearby. By the beginning of the twentieth century, the two schools combined to make the Gammon Institute, which exists today.

In 1908, the women's division of the school was named the Charlotte Kemper College in honor of its founder. When she died in 1926, a street in Rio de Janeiro was named for her.

Miss Kemper's leadership inspired other women at Mary Baldwin to pursue overseas careers. And by the 1890's, the Augusta Female Seminary had become a center of training for women Presbyterian missionaries.

Even Mary Julia Baldwin was spurred by Miss Kemper's work, and sent her students overseas. Her library, which remains in the Reigners Room of the Grafton Library on campus, contains many books on overseas missions and female missionaries.

Professor Keller with three Mary Baldwin College alumnae who have spent over 50 years combined in missionary service. They are left to right, Charlotte Taylor '33, Keller, Margaret Patterson Mack '28, and Mary Garland Taylor '29.

When she died in 1891, Miss Baldwin left $10,000 for foreign mission activity, plus another $5,000 for home missions of the Presbyterian Church.

By 1900, seminary alumnae had left Staunton for service in China, Japan, Korea, and Brazil. Women also traveled to Cuba, the Philippines, Mexico, and the Congo.

Lily U. Woods, of the Mary Baldwin Seminary Class of 1914, founded the Martha D. Riddle School for Girls in Hwaiianfu, China. By the 1930's, the school had more than 100 students. The school, however, was destroyed in 1938 as the Japanese advanced through China during World War II.

Libby Alby Bull, of the seminary class of 1893, established the Mary Baldwin School for Girls in Kunsan, Korea in 1900. The school had educated thousands of women by 1940, when it, too, was closed because of the war.

In Korea today, the memory of Mary Baldwin missionaries survives as another school descended from the Kunsan girls' school. The Young Myung High School in Kunsan remembered Mary Baldwin in 1964, when it presented the College a set of handsome lacquered vases now on display in the Reigners Room.

Today, there are still alumnae engaged in Christian services overseas. And the opening of jobs in fields outside the church has introduced new interest in international career opportunities for Mary Baldwin women.

The College continues to support overseas work with preparatory programs in France, Italy, Spain, Austria, and England.

And in July, the College will inaugurate a new student exchange program with Doshisha Women's College in Kyoto, Japan, as part of an effort to establish new ties with other nations.

Chapter Activities Include Welcoming Students, Planning Phonathon

Richmond

Richmond area freshmen and their parents were entertained at a reception August 24 hosted by the Richmond Alumnae Chapter. Approximately 50 guests attended the event at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Chappell (Margaret Cole '64). A number of students who are Student Government officers for the '82-'83 year as well as alumnae attended the party to meet the new students.

The reception was organized by Melissa Wimbish Ferrell '71. Other alumnae who helped with the planning, refreshments, and publicity include Ann Jackson McCoy '45, Carroll Blair Keiger '76, Sherry Bassett Brooks '77, Becky Jones Young '74, Mary Letha Warren '79, Nancy Tokarz '78, Leigh Yates '74, and Elizabeth Cary Spell '74.

Officers of the Richmond Chapter for the '82-'83 year are:

Shirley Frey Morris '71,
Chairman
Sherry Bassett Brooks '77,
Assistant Chairman
Carroll Blair Keiger '76,
Treasurer

Carolyn Avery '73, Secretary
Dudley Luck, Director of the Richmond Center of the ADP, presented a program on the Adult Degree Program at the September meeting of the chapter.

Pamela Kent Pettus '72, Vice-President for Admissions of the Alumnae Board, addressed the Richmond Chapter October 13 concerning the chapter's role in admissions work for Mary Baldwin. The meeting was held at the home of Shirley Frey Morris '71. Plans were made for the chapter's participation in the Bizarre Bazaar and preparing exam Care packages for current students.

The Richmond Alumnae Chapter Scholarship has been awarded to Kim Williams for the '82-'83 year. Kim is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lee Williams of Richmond. This is the second year the Richmond Chapter has awarded the scholarship. The funds for the scholarship are raised from projects such as selling Moravian sugar cakes at the Bizarre Bazaar and exam Care packages for current students.

Washington/Northern Virginia

A group of eight alumnae, an associate trustee, and a former Dean of the College represented Mary Baldwin at a national convocation honoring Father Theodore Hesburgh on October 9. Those participating in the Mary Baldwin delegation were Mr. and Mrs. Edmund D. Campbell, Otey Hayward Swoboda '61, Suzanne Higgins '75, Susan Moomaw '80, Betty Johnston '79, Susan Baughman Homar '74, Susan Walker '80, Marcia McDonald Helms '72, and Mary Minichan '80.

The delegates marched in academic regalia at the convocation which was held at the Jefferson Memorial and attended a reception afterwards at George Washington University. The event was the highlight of National Higher Education Week.

Ten alumnae from the Washington, D.C., area met at the home of Susan Baughman Homar '74 on October 19 to make plans for reorganizing the Metro Chapter. Those present were: Sally Adams '80, Suzanne Higgins '75, Faith Durrer '76, Marcia McDonald Helms '72, Susan Moomaw '80, Betty Johnston '79, Susan Walker '80, Sanford Jones McAllister '80, and Mandy Burrus '80. Plans are being made for the publication of a newsletter and for chapter activities in the D.C. area.

Dallas

On September 13, Frank Pancake met with several members of the Dallas Chapter at the Mansion Hotel. Frances Lawrence '77, Cindy Henley '79, Allison Hall Blaylock '76, and Agnes Cooper '71 discussed upcoming chapter events and plans for the Phonathon. Dr. Pancake was in Dallas for the Fine Arts Center Campaign.

A dinner party honoring President Lester was given by Bob and Anne Ponder Dickson '61 in their home in Dallas on October 6. Guests for the dinner were George Ann Brown Carter '47, Elray and Carolyn Cox Howard '53 of Fort Worth, Tav and Carolyn Lupton, Weatherby and Peggy Anderson Carr '67, Al and Margaret Hunt Hill '37, Buddy and Caroline Hunt Schoellkopf '43, Frances Lawrence '77, and Ed and Sylvia Cuellar Luedtke '61.

The Dallas Chapter held its fall meeting on October 12 at Pfaf's. The group met for dinner and discussed upcoming plans.

On November 22, the Dallas Chapter held its Founders' Day meeting at the Mansion on Turtle Creek. The tea was hosted by Caroline Hunt Schoellkopf '43 and honored Rosemarie Sena, Chairwoman of the Board of Trustees of Mary Baldwin College. Mrs. Schoellkopf later held a dinner at the Mansion in order to introduce Miss Sena to key MBC contributors in the Dallas area.

Chapter Officers for the '82-'83 year are:

Frances Lawrence '77, President
Sally Simons '80, Secretary
Kathy Barksdale Craine '74,
Treasurer
Cindy Henley '79, Admissions

New York

The New York Alumnae Chapter has contributed a gift of $200 to the Annual Fund. The money was raised at a cocktail party April 2 hosted by Malou Thorn Rawls '69 and her husband Waite. Raffle tickets were sold for a gourmet dinner which the Rawls prepared and served in their home on June 19. The lucky winners of the seven-course meal were Debbie Dull Walker '75, Angie Painter '68, Diane Copley '68, Judith Galloway Totaro '69, and their guests.

Approximately 50 alumnae and their guests attended the cocktail party which featured hors d'oeuvres from the MBC cookbook, From Ham to Jam. Those assisting Malou in preparing the food were Susan Thorn Marr '73, Carter Warren '79, and Cathy Jolley '80.

During a recent trip to New York, Charlotte Jackson Lunsford '51, a member of the Board of Trustees, and Frank Pancake, Director of Planned Giving, met with members of the New York chapter's steering committee. Liz Simons Ficalora '74, Mary Lea Snyder '75, and Betsy Booth '51 discussed the chapter's plans for upcoming events such as the Phonathon and MBC Month admissions parties.

President Virginia Lester met with the New York Chapter on November 16. She discussed the current state of the College. The meeting was held at the home of Cathy Jolley '80 and Margaret Chapman '80.

Steering Committee members for the '82-'83 year are:

Liz Simons Ficalora '74, Chairman

Betsy Booth '52, Secretary

Center for Adult Degree Program Opens in Richmond

A traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony signaled the official opening of a non-traditional Adult Degree Program in Richmond on June 15. The Richmond Center of the Mary Baldwin College Adult Degree Program at 1627 Monument Avenue hosted a reception to mark the beginning of the newest educational opportunity for working adults in the Richmond area.

The Adult Degree Program of Mary Baldwin College, founded in 1977 at the Staunton campus, is a non-residential, individualized, bachelor of arts degree program designed specifically to meet the educational needs of adults. "The men and women enrolled in the program must meet the same graduation requirements as a traditional Mary Baldwin student, but we recognize that many adults have gained college-level learning outside the classroom," said Dudley Luck, director of the Richmond Center. She explained that the program is tailored for working adults who have employment or family responsibilities and need to work at their own pace with the option of maintaining a full-time or a part-time course schedule. One of the greatest advantages of the Adult Degree Program is that it allows flexibility for the student who has often put in 40 hours on the job or at home.

Connie Galloway, director of the Adult Degree Program at Mary Baldwin College, said she is "highly optimistic about the future of the Richmond Center." When the program was begun five years ago at Mary Baldwin eight students were enrolled. The enrollment now is 157 students. Response to recruiting in Richmond indicates that the program will be similarly successful.

Richmond area adults interested in more information about the Mary Baldwin College Adult Degree Program can call Dudley Luck, director of the Richmond Center at (804) 353-8993, Monday-Friday 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Active Alumnae Recruit Students From Across Nation

The Alumnae Admissions Program is a network of alumnae volunteers who complement the efforts of Mary Baldwin's Admissions Office. This year there are 27 Area Coordinators (AC's) across the country. AC's usually serve a two-year term in the efforts of recruiting prospective students in their respective geographic areas. Responsibilities of AC's include: contacting prospective students; attending "college nights" at local high schools; and organizing receptions for potential MBC students, parents, current students, and alumnae.

The following list gives the names of current Area Coordinators. Contact the AC in your area and offer your help and support in communicating Mary Baldwin's "story." For more information call the MBC Office of Alumnae Activities: 703/885-0811, ext. 361.

Another important part of the Alumnae Admissions Program is the Alumnae Nominations Program. This program provides alumnae the opportunity to refer qualified high school students to MBC. The program guarantees priority consideration for all prospective students identified by alumnae.

Nomination forms were mailed to alumnae in August. Please return the nomination forms as soon as possible.

Mary Baldwin Joins Old Dominion Athletic Conference

Debbie Huffman completes a successful spike as Mary Shuford and Charis Caldwell look on. Volleyball is in its first year as an intercollegiate sport at Mary Baldwin.

Mary Baldwin College, Hollins College, Randolph-Macon College, and Sweet Briar College are official new members of the Old Dominion Athletic Conference.

The four private women's colleges cleared the final hurdle of conference membership in late June when they were accepted into the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). The four had been offered ODAC membership at the league's May 17 spring meetings pending acceptance into the NCAA as required of all ODAC colleges. The women's colleges had previously belonged to the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) which ceased operations in June.

"These new members and the entire program of women's sports will be assets to the conference," stated league Commissioner Dan Wooldridge. "They strengthen the league's foundation as a successful small-college athletic association and reinforce the Division III (non-athletic scholarship) philosophy shared by league members."

Women's sports became part of the league in early June following approval by the member college presidents on a motion passed at the May 17 meetings by the college athletic directors. Competition will begin this September in eight sports: volleyball and field hockey in the fall; basketball, swimming and fencing in the winter; tennis and lacrosse in the spring; and equestrian competition throughout the year.

"The addition of the women's program is and will be a smooth operation," offers Wooldridge, who has been associated with the conference since 1976, its initial year. "The ODAC has the administrative mechanism which the women will share. And the women have done their ground work by drawing up rules for the eight sports."

Coach Lois Blackburn commented, "I feel that we are fortunate in that we were able to go into a conference. Many schools have yet to find a conference affiliation."

The women's conference of ODAC offers MBC an opportunity to compete with other private schools in the state of Virginia. Even some Division I schools, such as Virginia Tech, are being forced to travel great distances for competitions within the conference.

"I regret that the AIAW could no longer function as the national organization for women's athletics," noted Blackburn, "but I feel that under the circumstances, we got the best possible deal for Mary Baldwin."

Membership in the ODAC has given MBC the chance to expand the number of sports played each season, thus the addition of volleyball, field hockey and cross country.

Alumnae To Have New Home On Campus

Mary Baldwin College has acquired the residential property on the corner of Kable and Coalter Street. The three-story masonry structure, formerly called Timberlake House, is being renovated to house the Alumnae Activities offices and provide accommodations for the alumnae and the College.

Plans for the house have been prepared by Joan Young A.S.I.D., who is an adjunct faculty member at MBC. The plans provide for alumnae offices, a reception area and kitchen to be housed on the first floor of the building, and four guest rooms on the second floor.

Projected completion of the facility is early 1983. No date has been set for furnishing the Alumnae House, but a detailed list of furnishings has been prepared by Mrs. Young. If you plan to give furnishings to the College, please contact the MBC Office of Alumnae Activities: 703/885-0811, ext. 361, or address written inquiries to: Furnishings Committee, c/o Office of Alumnae Activities, Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va. 24401.

Once upon a time it was unconventional to give anything to a college except cash, stocks, or real estate. That day is past. Gifts in kind are now common practice for both individual and corporate donors. You should consider the possibilities.

The interest in riding is at a high point, and we need more horses. Could you help?

Just recently we received a beautiful oil painting from an alumna. Works of art are always timeless gifts.

A special opportunity currently exists. The College's Alumnae House is in progress and will soon need furnishings. Several alumnae chapters have undertaken projects, but Joan Young, our interior designer, would very much like to talk with anyone interested in making a gift in kind.

Dr. Frank Pancake is Mary Baldwin's specialist in the tax benefits of such gifts by individuals and corporations. Phone 703-885-0811, extension 308.
